Giant culverts

Some Shoreline residents to receive water service

BY ED LEPOMA

About 500 Shoreline Park residents could soon have a new source for water.

The Hancock Water and Sewer District learned at its meeting Thursday that the Mississippi Rural Water Association will release $2 million to District 1 July 1.

District Administrator Pam Gauthreaux said the funds come from the United States Department of Agriculture's Rural Development Program, and will be in the form of an $800,000 low-interest loan and an out-right grant of $1.2 million.

The District applied for the funds in July 1998, and Gauthreaux said plans are to apply for additional grants.

Gauthreaux said a contract to drill a water well, and to install the water pipes could be advertised soon, with actual construction starting as early as September.

District engineer Duke Levy said the first customers hooked up to the water system would be Shoreline Park residents along Central Ave. and Avenue B, following the same phased construction that has been used to install the sewer lines.

He said the water lines would go on the right-of-ways on the opposite side of sewerage lines, and there would be no need to tear up some recently paved streets.

That good news comes after the District let contracts to link an additional 680 Shoreline Park residents to the sewerage system. Gauthreaux said the District is linking eight to 10 customers a day up to the system, and there is a waiting list of customers waiting to be connected.

Gauthreaux said she has gotten "a bunch of calls" from property owners in low-lying areas south of I-10 that are still without sewerage wanting to know when "holding tanks" would be available.

Legislation passed in the recent session authorized the District to charge a monthly fee for installing and maintaining a 2,000-gallon sewerage holding tank in flood-prone and soil-poor areas as a temporary measure to allow property owners to build, and to stop some homeowners and those in mobile

Myriad of issues face Bay P&Z

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Plans for a new RV Park on Casino Magic Drive, and commercial use of a Dunbar Street residence, were recommended Wednesday for approval by the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission.

The Commission also took two votes that shelve, at least temporarily, a controversial subdivision request by Robert Breeden. Those votes came only after prolonged and heated challenges to the subdivision plans were hurled from members of the audience.

Hostility towards Breeden's further development, between South Beach Boulevard and Bay Oaks Drive, had appeared Monday during public comments at a Bay St. Louis City Council meeting. And a replay is likely in future meetings regarding the same subdivision.

Meanwhile, there was almost no opposition to plans from Ira Hatchett to construct the first phase of a RV park behind the radio station Hatchett owns on Casino Magic Drive.

He agreed to address the concerns raised by the P&Z commission over potential traffic flow problems at his entranceway, by changing its configuration.

Hatchett wants permission to open 30 RV slots in the first phase of his RV Haven at 1190 Casino Magic Drive, allowing campers to remain for up to 90 days. Hatchett said the prolonged visit span would encourage "snowbirds" to settle down awhile in Bay St. Louis, spending visitor dollars that will benefit the local economy.

He cited potential addition of casinos in this area, and a national boom in the number of recreational vehicle owners across the nation.

Speaking in support of the plans, Phillip Williams said the new park will "enhance our business attitudes" toward something other than the casino industry.

Another comment came from Dorothy McLemore, who said the city is granting too many "special exceptions" to the city's zoning ordinance. And she questioned the wisdom of allowing large RV parks in the city limits.

RV Haven is designed with underground utilities and a School uniforms out at Hancock for next session

Following months of discussion, the Hancock County School District's Board of Education has decided not to implement a school uniform policy for the 1999-2000 school year.

During the June 7 recess meeting, board members agreed that the uniform policy will be reviewed during the upcoming year to see if there is the possibility of implementing the policy at some of the schools in the district for the 2000-2001 school year.

The district will also utilize the upcoming year to conduct school uniform fashion shows, better develop a uniform committee comprised of parents, students and faculty, and investigate existing uniform policies.

Hancock County School District fist polled the community in the spring, but did not receive adequate feedback to make a sound judgement.

In early May, parents of students in the district received a survey asking for assistance to determine whether or not a uniform policy would be favored.

Of the 30 percent of parents who responded to the survey, 73.4 percent were in favor of uniforms, 22.2 percent were against, and 4.4 percent held no opinion.

Board President Cheryl Bennett noted, "While most parents who responded were in favor of having uniforms, the board has decided that more time is needed to adequately address such an important issue."

The district will use this upcoming school year to explore various aspects of school uniforms such as cost effectiveness, improved discipline and increased safety of students. It's important to investigate all angles.

Landfill developers appeal supers vote

BY ED LEPOMA

The legal maneuverings over a proposed landfill in Hancock County took on a new turn this week.

On June 17, an attorney for Mississippi Waste of Hancock County filed a "Bill of Exceptions" with the county's Circuit Clerk's office that challenges the Board of Supervisors' right to call a referendum on the landfill.

The Echo contacted Paige York-Losee, president of Mississippi Waste, at her office in Hattiesburg. She said she was advised to file the challenge by her firm's attorney, William Cole, based in Jackson.

"It's a first step in going through the hoops," said York-Losee.

She said the action was based "on the fact that we had two totally opposite opinions from the state attorney general's office" on whether or not the supervisors had the power to call an election based on a petition drive led by two citizens groups. The citizens groups oppose the landfill site on a 723-acre site off Flat-Top Road in the vast buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center, and they want Hancock County to own, maintain and operate a landfill if one is sited and permitted.

In the petition, Mississippi Waste claimed it "is aggrieved by the action of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County in attempting to assert jurisdiction over the amendment of the Hancock County Solid Waste Management Plan, and in accepting petitions and setting an election...without notice to Appellant and opportunity for a hearing."

On June 7, Hancock County's Regional Solid Waste Authority voted 4-2 to amend the county's 20-Year Solid Waste Plan that would allow the prop-

Summer youth at work

BY ED LEPOMA

You might see younger than normal people working in county government this summer.

Chancery Court Clerk Tim Kellar has hired a number of youths from age 16 and older to work in various county departments, and at little cost to the county.

Some are helping to paint and spruce up the interior of the historic Hancock County Courthouse. Some are throwing out old records the county no longer needs to keep. Others are working in the buildings and Maintenance Division and in Chancery and Youth Court offices.

"We've also got one in purchasing, one in accounting, one at the Board of Supervisors office, and another in bookkeeping," said Kellar.

Kellar said he has two students working in his office.

Funds are funneled to a five-county Gulf Coast business District area through the Department of Labor under Job Partnership training Act. Students who qualify are paid minimum wage, and they must be 16 and older, in school, and from families receiving some kind of public assistance.

Out with the old

Under guidance from an employee with the state Department of Archives and History, the county began this week to clear out record books from the third floor of the historic Hancock County Courthouse. Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar said the county no longer needed to keep the records, and they were taking up much-needed space at the courthouse. A county truck carted the records away. Jackson resident donates wetlands

BY ED LEPOMA

Mississippi's Nature Conservancy is taking title to 213 acres of undeveloped wetlands in Hancock County thanks to a donation from a generous Jackson businessman.

W.D. "Billy" Mounger told the Echo from his Jackson office this week that he had owned the land since the 1960s when he purchased it.

"You can't develop it. It's all wetlands. So, donating it seemed to be the logical thing to do," Mounger said.

The marshland is situated where the Jourdan River flows into the Bay of St. Louis, and is in close proximity to Casino Magic, the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis and Diamondhead.

Mounger, a native of Jackson, who deals in oil and gas leases and other business ventures, said he has visited Hancock County and other coastal destinations in the past and he has fished in the area.

"But, I wouldn't say I'm an avid hunter or fishermen," he said.

The national Nature Conservancy is a non-profit organization headquartered in Washington, D.C., with chapters in many states, including Mississippi.

Since its incorporation in 1951, the Conservancy and its members have been responsible for the protection of more than 10 million acres in 50 states and Canada. It has also partnered with organizations to preserve millions of acres in Latin America, the Caribbean, the Pacific and Asia.

While some Conservancy-acquired areas are sold for management to other conservation groups, both public and private, the Conservancy owns more than 1,600 preserves and is the largest private system of sanctuaries in the world.

Pass Water to be treated

BY ED LEPOMA

Mayor Billy McDonald estimates it will take about two months for Pass Christian's water supply to get clearer.

A homeowner came to the Board of Aldermen's recess meeting last Tuesday night and complained that his water has a brown tint, and it wasn't the first complaint that's been lodged before the Board about the city's water supply.

McDonald said the city's four water wells are checked regularly and certified by the state Health Department. Health officials say the brownish color of the water does not mean the water is unsafe to drink, but the coloration can be caused by a variety of factors, including iron and magnesium deposits.

McDonald has hired Coast

Chlorinators, Inc., of Biloxi to treat the water and make it clearer. The firm has treated other public water systems in Gulfport, Long Beach and Bay St. Louis.

Plans are to treat the water with a food-grade chemical compound made of blended phosphate. Only a gallon of the chemical will be added to every one million gallons of water.

The treatment will cost about $2,800 initially, then about $450 a month thereafter.

Estimates are that it will take about two months for Pass Christian residents to see the full effect. Those residents who are farthest from the city's water wells should see the greatest improvement.

Legion Award

Camille Covington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Covington of Pass Christian, received the American Legion Award at Our Lady Academy eighth grade promotion ceremony May 28 from Sister Donella Hartman, principal.

First to display

As one of the first pieces of art to be included in the St. Stanislaus permanent student art collection, this watercolor piece focusing on the theme of the crucifixion was created by Jason Platz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Platz of Bay St. Louis.

St. Stanislaus starts student art collection

As a means of recognizing student talent and artistic ability, St. Stanislaus recently started a permanent student art collection. Each of the student's artwork will be displayed in the conference room at St. Stanislaus on a permanent basis.

"This is the first year that we are inviting the works of several of our senior art students to participate and be members of a permanent student art Collection at St. Stanislaus," said Dana Bordelon, art teacher.

The first students to be invited to showcase their work are seniors Jackson Harris, son of Jack Harris of Baton Rouge; Joey Slipher, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Slipher of Tylertown; and Jason Platz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Platz of Bay St. Louis.

Harris' work features an abstract geometric design on his clay vessel. Platz's work is a watercolor piece focusing on the theme of the crucifixion. Slipher's work is a pastel study of equestrian subject matter.

"We've been very proud of our students' art work throughout the years," said Brother Ronald Talbot, SC, president of St. Stanislaus. "This permanent collection now gives us an opportunity to recognize our truly outstanding art students."

Theft charges lead to two Bay arrests

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
The Bay St. Louis Police made two arrests Wednesday in connection with the theft of $1,200 from an individual.

Police Chief Frank McNeil reports that, "On Wednesday June 23, Stephanie Jean Futrell, was arrested and charged with grand larceny by Bay police. Futrell was transported to the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility where she was held on a $5,000 bond."

"Also incarcerated, along with Futrell, was George Vele, who was apparently involved with Ms. Futrell. The United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida wanted Vele for the charge of conspiracy to manufacture methamphetamines. He was on probation on an original sentence of 58 months," McNeils report said.

Detective/Lieutenant Tom Burleson is in charge of the investigation. Sgt. Richard Hannah and Officer Melissa Wellman assisted Burleson in the investigation. All stolen funds were recovered.

Thursday shooting on Sycamore Street

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil reports the Thursday shooting of a Bay resident on Sycamore Street.

McNeil's news release said, "The police department was notified by a resident of Sycamore Street that they had heard shots being fired, and they saw a person running who appeared to be bleeding. The call was received at approximately 1:02 p.m., and the officer responding to the complaint discovered that Bobby McDowell had been shot."

"McDowell was transported to Hancock Medical Center by a private vehicle. It appeared that McDowell, a Bay resident, was shot one time by a small caliber handgun. The wound was in his upper arm.

"Arrested and charged with aggravated assault was Matthew Smallwood, 56, 14th Street, Hancock County. Smallwood was transported to the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility where he was to be held under a $10,000 bond and was given a court day of July 7, 1999," McNeil's report said.

Pass Alderman has new employer

BY ED LEPOMA
Pass Christian Alderman-at-Large Leo "Chipper" McDermott has a new job, but still can't vote on issues involving Hancock Bank.

McDermott now works in the worthless check division in the office of District Attorney Cono Carana.

Mayor Billy McDonald said he is awaiting a decision by Chancery Court Judge J.N. Randall, which should resolve a conflict of interest question once and for all.

When McDermott was elected to his post in 1997, he was working for an automobile financing company, but then he went to work for Hancock Bank, doing mostly the same kind of business.

About a year ago, city attorney Malcolm Jones discovered that McDermott could have a conflict since the city deposits its money with Hancock Bank, and sometimes makes short-term loans from the bank.

The state Ethics Commission never issued a ruling in the case, but in an effort to settle the issue, Hancock Bank had a hearing before Judge Randall last week, and his ruling is being awaited.

In the meantime, Jones says state ethics laws apply for a full-year from the time McDermott left the bank in May, and he should continue to excuse himself when bank business comes up before the mayor and Board of Aldermen.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The United States Representatives appear once again to be on the correct track in passing a constitutional amendment 305-124 to safeguard the flag.

Now the amendment has to go before the Senate to get its approval, and if successful there it then must be ratified by three-fourth of the states.

Three times during the past four years, a constitutional amendment to safeguard the flag has been passed by the House only to die in the Senate.

The American flag is a symbol of this nation, and the flag protection laws were struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1989 on the grounds it violated First Amendment free speech rights.

It is interesting that the flag protection law has been on the books of this nation for 200 years without any infringement on free speech.

Those of us who have donned a uniform to fight for this nation in great and not so great wars and in peace time to protect our continued peace, should argue with that Supreme Court decision.

Anyway, I know that the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other military organizations have been working for several years to once again have our American flag protected by the constitution.

Hopefully the Senate will support the amendment and it will be ratified by the necessary states to once again become law.

In some five weeks the residents of this county and state will be going to the polls to select candidates for their respective parties to be on a ballot in the November general election.

People to be elected to serve for the next four years will range from governor to constable and all positions in between.

Thus far, to me the election in this county appears to be quiet compared to prior ones, and I get the same response from many who have witnessed them before.

Anyway, this afternoon at 1, there will be a political rally sponsored by the Kiln Veterans of Foreign Wars. All candidates and the general public are invited to attend.

On Thursday of this past week, the Mississippi Gulf Coast Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo princesses made their annual tour of Hancock County.

The fishing rodeo, with headquarters in Gulfport, began back in 1947 and Hancock Countians have been very much involved in the event since its inception.

The visit by the rodeo princesses has been going on as long as I can recall.

To mention a few, past kings of the fishing rodeo from Hancock County have included, Ed Ortte, Ed Arce-neaux Sr., Leo Seal Sr., Leo Seal Jr., J. Norton Haas, J.D. (Big John) Rutherford, J.C. Baxter and John Auderer.

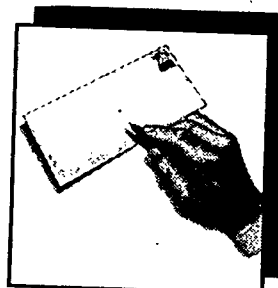

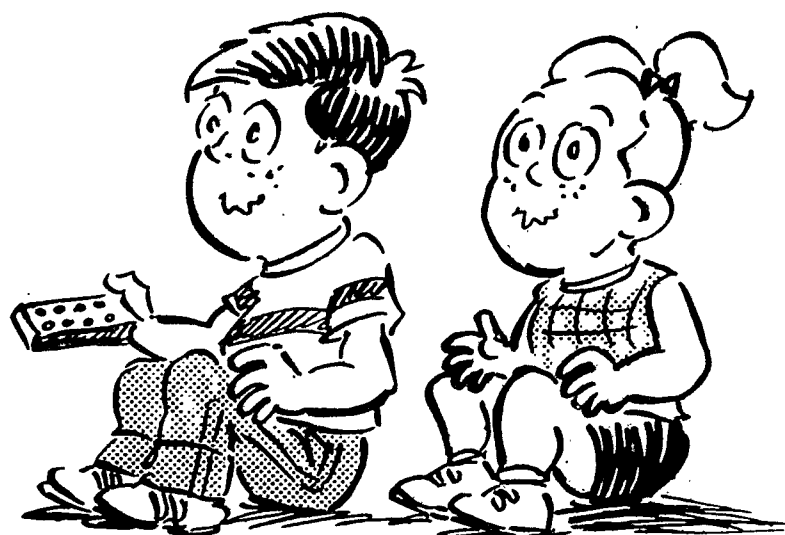

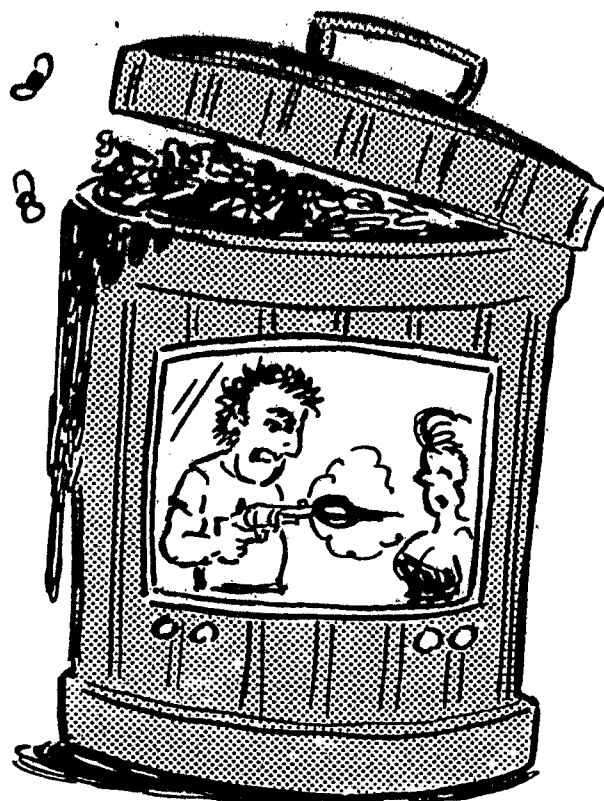

Russell Elliott of Bay St. Louis has been an association director for the past 37 years and the queen selection committee co-chair for 31 years.

There are 11 princesses from along the Coast and Stone County who vie for queen of the rodeo.

The area princesses include from Bay St. Louis, Janell Payne; Waveland, Jolinda Geoffrey; and Hancock County, Ashley Whitchuck.

The princesses had a great time, and I am sure they will do a great job in representing the county at the long July 4th weekend deep sea fishing rodeo at the Rice Pavilion in Gulfport.

THE ELECTRONIC BABY SITTER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Municipal parking lot, from the horse's mouth

To the Editor:

It is common knowledge that we have been planning a resort hotel and marina for many years. Although it has been slow, we have been pursuing our goal.

We are currently engaged in a feasibility study for a hotel, restaurant and marina.

It is also common knowledge that the City of Bay St. Louis spent thousands of dollars on a gaming study around 1991, which concluded, among other things, that in order for the downtown to be a viable destination, a hotel was necessary.

Further, in 1987 the Gulf Regional Planning Commission and the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District, did a study entitled, "Bay St. Louis Downtown Waterfront Study." It also concluded, "One problem with this strategy is the absence of hotels or other lodging in the downtown area."

It further concluded, "That most visitors to Bay St. Louis came for only a day or stayed with friends. The absence of overnight accommodations is a deterrent to developing Bay St. Louis into a resort area."

Visitors in the area must stay in other locations on the Coast, thus depriving Bay St. Louis of revenue." (Waterfront Study/sec. 3 page 3.3, June 1987)

Parking has been a major problem, concern and issue for the downtown merchants for many years. Parking is critical to any development of new business downtown.

Currently, the parking and traffic situation downtown is out of control. Add to that the projection that the Coast population is expected to triple within the next 5-10 years.

It is clear, the parking and traffic issue must be addressed immediately for the benefit of the downtown merchants.

It is not our intention to hinder business in the downtown, especially our own. However, it is not our responsibility to provide free parking for the city.

Our goal is to enhance downtown with a small, beautiful waterfront hotel and marina, where tourists can stay, eat, shop, ride horses, play on the beach, fish or simply relax and enjoy historic Bay St. Louis.

The ultimate goal for everyone concerned is revenue (money). More revenue (money) should mean lower taxes. After last year's 400 percent increase in property taxes, something must be done!

We are looking forward to working with the city on our project and resolving the parking issue.

Thank you for your past and continued support of all the downtown merchants.

Sincerely,
Ray Murphy

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Time for "Lock Box"

In January, I challenged President Clinton to join the Congressional leadership in developing a long-term strategy for preserving America's Social Security System, and the President seemed willing. I also told readers of this column to, "pay close attention, the coming months will show who is serious about preserving Social Security, and who is merely posturing." The Administration and a few Senate allies have been stalling, but a lack of Presidential agreement is not stopping the U.S. Senate leadership from moving forward with our plan to preserve Social Security.

Our plan is called "Lock Box," and it will keep present and future Senate and House members, as well as the President, away from the keys to the Social Security Trust Fund, ensuring that our seniors' money will not be used for the fleeting "emergencies" of the moment.

Here is the situation. For the first time in 30 years, our federal budget is balanced. Right now the Social Security Trust Fund is taking in more from taxes that it is dispersing in benefits. As a result, over the next 10 years a projected Social Security surplus of $1.8 trillion will accumulate, part of an overall $2.5 trillion estimated total federal budget surplus. On the surface that sounds good, but we must be very careful. In the past, Social Security surpluses have been used to hide the size of the federal deficit, as well as for financing government programs ranging from foreign aid to funds for the Internal Revenue Service. Obviously we need to scrap these past examples.

Our Lock Box charts a new course. The balanced budget we have today is real — balanced without using the Social Security Trust Fund for slick accounting gimmickry. The question is, "what do we do with the Social Security surplus?" The federal government faces the same type of choice millions of private citizens face after accumulating extra money. We can either save the surplus, use it to pay bills, or spend it.

I favor saving every penny of this $1.8 trillion to save Social Security. If we cannot agree on a long-term Social Security plan, then I contend this money should be used to reduce the public debt, not for non-Social Security spending, as the Administration would do. The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimates that the Administration's latest budget would spend $158 billion of the Social Security surplus, 20 percent of the total surplus to be generated during the next five years. This spending would not be for our nation's retirees. Instead it would go to fund more pet-projects. Soon we would be right back to the phoney budget charts of the past.

Our Lock Box can prevent this from happening. First, it would exclude Social Security from the overall federal budget. Second, it would require a difficult to attain vote of 60 Senators to borrow from the Social Security Trust Fund for non-Social Security spending. Thirdly, it would establish a law mandating that there be a limit on the amount of debt that can be held by the public equal to the amount of Social Security surpluses.

Protecting this fund for the men and women who created it is clearly the right thing to do. Yet, there are still some Senators holding up this legislation, going to great lengths to get access to your retirement funding, which our government faithfully deducts from your paycheck. As I write this column, Lock Box opponents have stopped a fourth attempted Senate vote on Lock Box legislation, even though the U.S. House has overwhelmingly passed a Lock Box measure 416-12. The House vote speaks volume. Clearly the American people want the Senate and President to turn the keys to America's Social Security Trust Fund. 6/18/99

Senator Lott welcomes any questions and/or comments about this column. Write to: U.S. Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. (Attention: Press Office.)

Fordice calls special session

Governor Kirk Fordice issued a call for a Special Session of the Mississippi Legislature to consider income tax relief.

The Legislature will convene July 22. An income tax rebate bill passed the House of Representatives with 95 percent of the vote during the regular session but did not receive a vote in the Senate Finance Committee and died.

"The people of Mississippi want, need and deserve a tax cut — after all, the people earned the money," said Fordice. "The benefits to the Mississippi taxpayer vastly outweigh the cost of a Special Session. Citizens of Mississippi, it is your money."

The Governor noted that the 10 percent tax cut would be phased in and is the same tax cut passed by the House of Representatives with broad, bipartisan support. It is estimated that the tax cut will return $400 million to taxpayers over the next six years.

In Fiscal Year 1998, the state of Mississippi had a $101 million surplus. Personal income tax collections for Fiscal Year 1999 have grown 10 percent.

IN CONGRESS

By Representative Gene Taylor

Call it MFN or NTR, it's still a bad deal for America

In the next few weeks Congress is expected to vote on the annual renewal of Normal Trade Relations (NTR) status for China. The politicians and special interests promoting this agreement with communist China must have decided that the "normal" in NTR would make it easier to sell this bogus deal to the American people. I want to tell you that there is nothing normal about our trade relationship with the communist Chinese and in fact, I believe that it's really an insane policy.

I prefer to think that NTR more appropriately stands for "Nuclear Tipped Rockets." Until last year NTR was known as Most Favored Nation (MFN) status for China. I believe that recent events have proven that MFN really stood for "Money for Nukes." I say this because it is the $60 billion trade surplus that China will enjoy at America's expense this year that is paying for their country's military modernization.

In addition to a $56.9 billion trade deficit with China last year, recent public reports state that China has been stealing our nuclear secrets for years. Chinese agents stole the design of the W88 nuclear warhead in the 1980's. Reports have also emerged about four cases in the 1970's through the 1990's when the Chinese stole or attempted to steal nuclear weapons design data from the Lawrence Livermore, Los Alamos and Sandia labs.

Bayou Town at libraries

Schadler's Bayou Town sing-a-long to highlight libraries' reading program

The Boudreaux family of Bayou Town fame and Cherie Schadler will present a Bayou Town Sing-a-long at all four branches of the Hancock County Library System for the fifth week of the system's 1999 Summer Reading Program.

Mississippi Magic is the theme for this year's summer reading program, open to children and young adults, preschool age through eighth grade. Programs and activities will continue through Friday, July 9.

The Bayou Town Sing-a-long will be Tuesday, June 29 at 10:30 a.m. at the Waveland Library; Wednesday, June 30 at the Bay St. Louis Library; Thursday, July 1 at 10:30 a.m. at the Kiln Library; and Friday, July 2 at 10 a.m. at the Pearlinton Library.

The 30 minute 'front porch sing-a-long' is hosted by composer/author Cherie Schadler. The puppet cast of 'Welcome to Bayou Town' joins Schadler for a musical, handclapping, foot-stomping, alligator-snapping Bayou Town good time.

There will be fun for everyone, with children singing along and playing as they learn more about good citizenship and being neighborly.

Susan Daigre, owner of Bookends Bookstore, assists in coordinating events for the Summer Reading Program.

Each registrant will receive a reading record, book bag and pencil with which to record books read, and those who complete the program will receive a certificate.

Awards and certificates for the reading program will be

Chamber awards

The following businesses received the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee's "Clean and Beautiful" award for June.

- Mitchell's Furniture in Waveland and
- Elise Sims, Attorney at Law, Bay St. Louis

The award is given monthly by the committee to recognize businesses who enhance our community by keeping their business clean and beautiful. Their efforts create community pride and is pleasing for both residents and visitors.

The goal of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is to promote the social, civic and economic well-being of our community. Through our various committees we have a number of programs and projects, both new and ongoing, to focus on this goal. Our Beautification Committee's awards are just one way we work to enhance Hancock County.

Born and raised in Greenwood, Miss., Marion L. Brown has been interested in photography since age 11.

Continuously developing his own philosophy about photographic creativity and expression throughout his lifetime, Marion began to ask himself questions such as "how and why the creative process unfolded in a person's mind and how might it be translated to his or her work."

Brown has developed a whole philosophy about photographic creativity and expression. Based on this philosophy he has lectured and taught workshops often. He published Journal of Creative Photography for seven years, featuring discussion of photographic creativity and expression with subscribers from all over the world.

Brown's photographs have been widely exhibited, collected and published, all across the U.S. in such museums as the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, International Center of Photography in New York and the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston.

Library book discussion group to meet

The Master and Margarita by Mikhail Bulgakov will be the selection to be discussed at the library's book discussion group's next meeting on Wednesday, June 30 at 7 p.m. in the Seal Meeting Room of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

The selection comes from the new volume, Order and Chaos, an international collection of literature, philosophy and poetry. One selection from this book is discussed at each meeting.

Sponsored by the Hancock County Library System, the discussion group began in March 1990. Since that time, they have completed 110 readings from great books (Plato, Hobbes, Locke, deTocqueville), Mississippi fiction, play readings and 20 philosophical questions. The group meets every other Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Reading selections have been chosen to stimulate lively shared inquiry discussions. This collection brings together works from around the world that speak to each other on a theme of universal significance.

A copy of Order and Chaos is available in the reference collection of the library for those who may wish to read selections in the library.

For information, call David Woodburn at the library at 467-5282.

In addition to the U.S. Brown has shown in museums throughout Germany, Russia, Finland, Italy and other European countries.

After serving three years in the U.S. Navy during World War II, Brown achieved his degree in chemical engineering from Mississippi State University. During his 34 years of employment with Mississippi Chemical Corporation as vice president of Research and Development, Brown broadened his creative knowledge of photography with instruction from such world-renowned photographers as Ansel Adams, Brett Weston, Paul Caponigro and Jerry Uelsmann.

Attempting to sum up the collective works featured in "Connections: Past, Present & Future," Brown says, "I seek to capture visions that go beyond the meaning of words—visions that make connections between my human spirit and life's varied emotions, going back to my roots, yet sometimes reflecting the future. There is much more to a visual experience than the meanings of the words used to try to describe it."

This, he says, is why he never stops to analyze what he's feeling or why he's drawn to a particular subject. "I just listen closely for something inside me to say, 'Make a photograph of this subject, in this way.'"

Brown's exhibition will be featured in the Jambalaya Gallery from July 1-31.

For information regarding this exhibit or any other at the George E. Ohr Arts & Cultural Center, call 228-374-5547.

NOTICE OF A FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The USDA, Rural Utilities Service has received an application for financial assistance from Hancock Water and Sewer District. The proposed project consists of a water distribution system to serve approximately 500 customers in the Shoreline Park area. The construction will consist of a 12" diameter water well and a 150,000 elevated storage tank.

As required by the National Environmental Policy Act, the Rural Utilities Service has assessed the potential environmental effects of the proposed project and has determined that the proposal will not have a significant effect on the human environment and for which an Environmental Statement will not be prepared. However, because the proposed project consist of installing water lines to customers located within the floodplain and wetland areas, and in order to avoid or minimize any adverse environmental impacts, the Rural Utilities Service will require the applicant to incorporate the following mitigation measures into the proposed project's design. The Water and Sewer District must adopt legally enforceable tap-in restrictions to protect the identified 100-year floodplains and wetland areas within the above mentioned areas. The 100-year floodplain will be those areas identified by the Federal Emergency Management Agency on the latest edition of the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM).

Copies of the Environmental Assessment can be reviewed or obtained at the Rural Development Office located at 132 Mairfair Road, Suite C, Hattiesburg, MS 39402. 601-261-3293. For further information please contact Robert W. Smith at 601-467-3292, Hattiesburg, MS.

Stanislaus starts Resident Council

Since its inception in 1854, St. Stanislaus has continuously educated young men. At the finale of its 145th year, the educational traditions of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart are still vibrant in the school.

As an integral part of its mission, St. Stanislaus maintains a residency program.

Of the 550 students, the resident student population consists of 220 young men from 15 states and 12 countries.

In an effort to complement the residency program, Brother Chris Sweeney, SC, director of residency, has initiated the Resident Council.

"The Resident Council is an advisory council consisting of resident students who report to the residency director," said Brother Sweeney. "The Resident Council shall act as an advisory authority on social, recreational and service activities; resident food service; resident rules and regulations; resident recreational halls; resident life improvements; resident newspaper, and resident environment."

Election of the first Resident Council was held May 10, and Junior Bobby Holbrook was elected president. The remainder of the officers will be elected at the beginning of the 1999-2000 academic year.

Holbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holbrook of Lafayette, is a member of Student Ministry, the varsity football team, and the Beta Honor Roll. Holbrook has been involved in numerous service projects and was also named Student of the Day.

Ladner basketball Clinic receives special guest

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The 12th annual Ladner's Gulf Coast School of Basketball made its first stop of the summer at Hancock High School during the week of June 14-18.

Instructors Jay Ladner and Michael Ladner were greeted with close to 80 campers starting at the age of five years thru the ninth grade.

The boys and girls camp also received a special guest on Friday, June 18th. Richard Williams, former Mississippi State University head coach, attended the camp to give special instruction to the campers on some of the finer points of offensive and defensive positioning, in addition to other basketball techniques.

Williams led his 1997 Bulldog squad to the Final Four before they were eliminated in the national semi-finals.

In addition to Williams, the Ladner camp featured instruction from cousins and founders of the camp Jay Ladner and Michael Ladner.

The former Ladner is the head coach at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis, while the latter Ladner is the head coach at Hancock High School.

Assisting the Ladners with instruction were Errol Gauff, Steve Austin, and Christy Arcement.

Other special guests at the camp were Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame members J. Larry Ladner and J. Roland Ladner.

J. Larry Ladner, a former coach at Picayune Memorial High School and instructor at the University of Southern Mississippi, has traveled the globe teaching and instructing the game of basketball. He calls this camp, "...the best of its kind in the country."

J. Roland Ladner, the winningest basketball coach in the state of Mississippi, is a former coach at Hancock North Central High School, Harrison Central High School, and Phillips College.

The annual camp uses a competitive atmosphere to instruct fundamentals of basketball like ball handling, passing, shooting, and defensive skills.

Camp moderator Jay Ladner commented, "This is just the second year that we have had a separate camp at Hancock. The traditional camp is held at St. Stanislaus. This year we saw tremendous growth with this camp. We expect it to grow to be about as large as the one held at SSC."

"The campers were treated with special guest instructors and speakers and the kids responded well to them. Anytime a camper can experience someone on the level of Richard Williams, it is a special event. Coach Williams has such great knowledge and experience to pass on. I'm sure each camper grew and developed just from being around a coach of his caliber."

The traditional camp for 10th thru seniors in high school will be held at the Brother Peter Memorial Gymnasium on the campus of St. Stanislaus during the last week of July.

For more information please call Jay Ladner at 467-9057 or Michael Ladner at 255-3857.

Pyramids important for strength training

By Gary Smith

What do pyramids have to do with strength training? Does weightlifting under a pyramidal structure build muscle power? I think not. How about a journey to the Nile Valley in Egypt for increasing a bench press? Enough foolishness... let's get serious!

Pyramid training is the standard method most athletes use for increasing power and muscle mass. It is an approach to weight training that is commonly applied to major muscle group exercises, such as the bench press, the squat, or the dead lift.

Following light warm-ups, the amount of weight used on each set of an exercise is increased until a moderately heavy working range is achieved. As the weight resistance goes up, more muscle fibers become involved in the exercise, resulting in improved strength and muscle density.

This is intense training that places considerable demands on muscles, tendons, and ligaments. To reduce the risk of strain, several weeks to months of light foundation building is necessary prior to starting pyramid training.

A beginning level of a pyramid might conform to the following pattern of repetitions: One light warm-up set, add weight, one set of 10 repetitions, add weight, two sets of 8 repetitions, then remove some weight for a final set of 10 repetitions.

An advanced pyramid might use the following pattern of repetitions: One or more warm-up sets, add weight for one set of 8 repetitions, add weight for one set of 6 repetitions, add weight for two sets of 4 repetitions, then remove plenty of weight for a final set of 10 repetitions.

Applying the pyramid method to any exercise places heavy stress on muscle and connective tissue. It is important to avoid overtraining. One way to avoid excessive fatigue and wear is to limit heavy pyramid workouts to once a week or even less frequently. This is especially true regarding squats and dead lifts.

A very light training session should be done between heavy pyramid workouts. Light sessions consisting of less than four sets of 10-12 repetitions per exercise are beneficial for circulation within muscles and allow connective tissue within joints to remain healthy.

Moderately heavy exercise pyramids in training sessions alternated with light workouts is a reliable method for developing strength, muscular density, and endurance. Focus on every repetition and enjoy the results.

Eagles' football schedule set

University of Southern Mississippi athletic director Richard Giannini announced that game times for all Southern Miss home football games this fall have been finalized.

The Golden Eagles will open the 1999 season against Tulane Sept. 6 at 2 p.m. That game will be televised nationally by Fox Sports Net.

The Eagles' other home games during the 1999 season, with the exception of the Northwestern (La.) State game Sept. 11, are also slated for 2 p.m. starts. The Northwestern State game is scheduled for a 6 p.m. kickoff.

All game times are still subject to change depending on television coverage.

Game times for four of the Eagles' six road games for the 1999 season have also been set, but like the home games, could change for television. Following is a complete list of available game times for the season.

New opportunity in the old world?

To the tourist, Europe has always seemed rather quaint: lots of little countries with distinct cultures upholding ancient customs. To international businesses, Europe has always been exasperating: lots of little countries with big tariffs, protected markets and competing currencies.

Over a weekend in January, the impossible happened: Europe changed forever. The crazy quilt of countries became a colossus—one market of nearly 300 million people with one currency, the euro. The 11 countries that use the euro even have a new nickname: Euroland. Somehow, they overcame nationalistic backbiting, lowered their debt, wrestled inflation to the mat and formed the world's most powerful new currency. In the next few years, they will phase out their national currencies completely.

What does this mean to you, the individual investor? That depends on your point of view. Pessimists see the euro as a threat. Commodities like oil could suddenly be traded in euros, thus putting pressure on the U.S. dollar. Even more dire, the doomsayers think, is the possibility that foreign investors will abandon their traditional safe haven of U.S. bonds—with which they have financed U.S. debt—in favor of new euro-based investments.

Two forces should keep these possibilities in check. One, if the euro becomes too strong, European exports will become too expensive. Two, the U.S. dollar reflects a strong economy, low inflation and a stable government—all attractive qualities in the eyes of foreign investors seeking security.

Before worrying too much about the downside to the introduction of the euro, savvy investors will look for the opportunities the euro provides. For example, the euro brings more global financial stability to the market since there are now fewer currencies open to attack by speculators and hedge funds. Also, the business of moving money from country to country has suddenly become much more streamlined. Gone are the currency fluctuations that made doing business in Europe so difficult. Gone are the tariffs designed to protect domestic markets but that raised costs when, for instance, auto parts made in Italy were trucked to a factory in Germany.

Who benefits first from the new streamlined Europe? International companies that already have a presence on the continent will feel an almost immediate impact. For them, the cost of doing business across so many borders has suddenly dropped. That means more profits and a better return to shareholders.

The improved financial flow brought about by the introduction of the euro will continue to have positive reverberations for years to come. That means Europe is becoming an exciting new world of opportunity for investors.

Mississippi Wildlife Federation recently held its annual conservation Achievement Awards Program at the Primos Northgate in Jackson. The annual event is sponsored by Mississippi Power Company. Among those in attendance were, from left, Ron Richardson, representing Lt. Gov. Musgrove; Tom Williams, Hunter Education Educator of the Year recipient for 1997; Bennie Smith, Hunter Education Educator of the Year recipient for 1998; Marshall Bennett, State Treasurer; Lester Spell, Agricultural Secretary; Gerald Barber, chairman of the National Wildlife Federation; and John Harvey, Mississippi Wildlife Federation president.

number of amenities, including picnic facilities and walking paths, showers, laundry facilities and on-site security.

Meanwhile the commission also recommended approval of plans for 720 Dunbar Avenue, a residential structure in an R-3 (apartment) zoning classification.

Ernest Drackett Jr. wants to use half of the building for a "full service" salon with hair styling and massage therapy, and the other half for professional offices.

Stipulations that would forbid apartment development on the long, narrow rear portion of the tract were attached by the commission.

While neighbors of the property at issue appeared satisfied with the proposal, one member of the audience threatened to sue City Council if it accepts the P&Z recommendation.

The threat came from Paul Seckso, a real estate agent who said he had won the P&Z's permission for identical usage of the property 18 months ago — only to be refused by City Council. "This is a redundant request," Seckso said.

Mississippi receives first AAA bond rating ever

The Mississippi Bond Commission approved the sale of the first AAA bonds ever in the State of Mississippi last week.

Mississippi was given the rating by Fitch Rating Services on the Grant Anticipation Revenue Vehicle (GARVEE) bonds. The bond issue was also given a AA1 rating by Moody Rating Service, the highest rating given to a state issuing GARVEE bonds.

Senate Bill 3023, 1999 regular legislative session, was approved by Governor Fordice on April 22, 1999. This legislation provided authorization for the State Bond Commission to issue refunding bonds for temporary borrowing to fund the 4-lane highway program.

Governor Fordice observes: "The attainment of this bond rating is a great accomplishment for the State of Mississippi. Mississippi will be the fourth state to utilize Federal Highway Funds for the purpose of securing revenue bonds in order to expedite improvements to its infrastructure. The higher bond rating allows the State to sell these bonds at a lower interest rate, thereby saving taxpayers million of dollars in interest expense on the debt. Additionally, because the GARVEE bonds are secured revenue bonds (i.e. limited obligation bonds), they do not increase the State's general obligation bonded indebtedness."

The Bond Commission consists of the Governor, the Attorney General, and the State Treasurer.

Fund raiser

homes from dumping raw sewerage illegally into area ditches and streams.

The District asked Levy to come back next month with recommendations on what size tank would be needed, along with a plan for contracting with some firm to install and maintain the tanks.

The tanks would be emptied out into a vacuum truck on a weekly basis, and they would be allowed only in areas where there are plans to extend sewerage lines within the next two years.

On another note, Gauthreaux said the great strides made by the District to extend sewerage into more area of rural Hancock County were recently reported on in the Summer issue of the Mississippi Rural Water Association's magazine.

The article detailed the funding sources that the District tapped to continue extending sewerage lines, and said the "District is a good example of a small public utility growing to meet the needs of the community which it serves," and predicted that the District "has the potential to be one of the largest public water and wastewater utility systems in Mississippi."

osed landfill to be located in the buffer zone.

Authority Chairman and District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman of Pearllington and District 3 Supervisor Lisa Pullman voted against amending the plan.

Minutes after the Authority's vote, the Board of Supervisors reconvened and unanimously passed a resolution accepting the signatures on citizens petitions and called for a public vote on the landfill.

Supervisors requested an election after getting a second opinion from the Attorney General's office in May that ruled the siting of a landfill remained the responsibility of the Board of Supervisors. That opinion reversed an April ruling from the state Attorney General's office that surmised that by forming a Regional Solid Waste Authority, supervisors turned over responsibilities for solid waste to the Authority.

Following the latest attorney general's opinion, and the supervisors subsequent vote to put the issue on a future ballot, the Authority's attorney, Lucien Gex, predicted, "We might be creating enough work for lawyers to put their children through law school for several years."

The Secretary of State's Office has recently announced that the referendum would have to be put on the November general election ballot or supervisors could call a special election on the landfill issue.

Litter is not free

BY JAMES L. CUMMINS JR.
Several years ago I was in Bismarck, North Dakota, at the Annual Meeting of the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies. That is the international organization that represents state agencies such as the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks. I had to make a presentation on the conservation provisions of the 1996 Farm Bill.

While I was there, I was shocked to see that there was no trash on the roadsides and in the streets of Bismarck. It and North Dakota were the cleanest city and state I had ever seen.

On the other hand, in Mississippi, we have trashy roadsides and streets. It is as if we don't care about how our surroundings look to other people or us.

The Mississippi Legislature recognized this problem. In 1988 the legislature passed a bill authorizing "Keep Mississippi Beautiful/People Against Litter." The program is not-for-profit and operates under a 17-person Board of Directors.

Its goals are to encourage communities in Mississippi to become part of the Keep America Beautiful System, assist communities in establishing litter prevention and education programs, coordinate an annual awards program and serve as a clearing house of information on ideas and projects.

Information ranges from prevention, which is most important, to litter cleanup and recycling. Information is free.

Funding for the program is, in part, through a contract with the Mississippi Department of Transportation. It also receives support from many public and private companies, as well as individuals who recognize the need for a clean and beautiful state.

Having a clean state is not only important for a quality environment, but a healthy economy too.

Let's say you have a large building to rent. Would you invite a potential manufacturer to come to your building and your office when you have not even cleaned it up? I mean there are old newspapers and coffee cups lying around. Trash is abundant. Files are stacked high and out of place.

How your building looks to the potential manufacturer plays an important role in the way Mississippians are perceived. It shows pride, or a lack of pride. If the manufacturer came to our state on an exploratory mission for an 800-person factory and saw the way your office, building and surroundings look, what do you think he would derive about Mississippi's work ethic and quality of work?

Let's clean up our act. It's not free.

For more information on Keep Mississippi Beautiful/People Against Litter, they can be contacted at 4785 I-55 North, Suite 103, Jackson, MS 39206, or by calling (601) 362-9099 or 1-800-545-3784.

James L. Cummins Jr. is Executive Director of the Mississippi Fish and Wildlife Foundation in Stoneville, Miss. Known as "Wildlife Mississippi," the Foundation is a non-profit, conservation organization founded to conserve, restore and enhance fish, wildlife and plant resources throughout Mississippi.

Star of Gold daylily brightens yards

By Norman Winter-MSU Horticulturist Central Mississippi Research & Extension Center

Few things are prettier than a daylily garden that looks like a changing kaleidoscope of color for weeks. There are thousands of spectacular daylilies for sale, some even approaching the cost of my first car.

Some of these bloom early, some mid-season and some late. A few even have repeat blooms, but there is one daylily that stands a head above the others. This is one to mass plant by the dozens if not the hundreds. If you want a daylily that blooms from May into early fall, there is only one variety for you.

This daylily's name translates as "Star of Gold," but you will buy it as Stella d'Oro. It's not big and won't win daylily contests, but it makes for winning landscapes. Stella d'Oro is a small daylily that reaches just under two feet tall and has bright, gold-yellow blossoms. It blooms early and often and although it may cycle, it is not uncommon to see it still blooming in the fall.

This quality makes Stella

flower production. Since it is such a prolific flower producer, Stella d'Oro likes to be fed with a complete and balanced fertilizer every four to six weeks. Stella d'Oro is well suited to massing like you would annual flowers, and can be grown in bold drifts with perennials, annuals or both. Try growing Stella d'Oro to the rear of a bed with Purple Wave petunias planted in front. If you plant Purple Heart in front, you will have a bed that will return year after year in much of the same state.

My favorite use is planted in drifts with perennial salvia like Victoria Blue or Indigo Spires. Stella d'Oro looks at home when combined in beds with ornamental grasses like Fountain or Maiden Grass and planted in front of evergreen shrubs like hollies or junipers.

When shopping, you may feel like Stella d'Oro is a little pricey, but to me it is one of the "sirloin strips" of the plant world. What is extra special is that it is a perennial and before long, you will be dividing it and placing them in more parts of the landscape.

Be sure to add a good layer of mulch to hold moisture, keep the soil cool and prevent weeds. My favorite mulch is pine straw, but I have to admit that a layer of pine bark mulch around Stella d'Oro daylilies is really striking.

Daylilies are best planted in early spring or fall, although container grown plants can be planted throughout the growing season with outstanding success. Keep seed pods picked off to keep energy focused on flower production.

Stella d'Oro require at least six hours of direct sunlight each day for best performance. They prefer raised beds rich in organic matter. Other than a few insect problems, almost every problem call I get on daylilies originates with them planted in soggy soils.

Be sure to add a good layer of mulch to hold moisture, keep the soil cool and prevent weeds. My favorite mulch is pine straw, but I have to admit that a layer of pine bark mulch around Stella d'Oro daylilies is really striking.

Daylilies are best planted in early spring or fall, although container grown plants can be planted throughout the growing season with outstanding success. Keep seed pods picked off to keep energy focused on

Summer tips for plant care

With the bright days of summer come humid and arid temperatures that scorch and sear your plants until they are parched and withering. There are a few steps that gardeners can take to keep plants looking healthy and beautiful, according to Reed Robison, coordinator of landscaping and grounds maintenance at the University of Mississippi.

"If people want to maintain a consistently attractive and pleasing landscape, then these things are important to do," says Robison. "There is no such thing as a low-maintenance landscape, and these tips should help keep plants in top health and good condition."

Fertilizer—Fertilize mature shrubs once per year between mid-March and the end of May with a complete fertilizer—for example, one containing nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium. Apply something like 8-8-8 or 10-10-10 at one pound of fertilizer per 100 square feet of shrubbed area. For new planting, apply four weeks after planting and again in August or September.

Soil pH—Most shrubs prefer a slightly acid soil (6.0-7.0 pH). Prolonged use of some fertilizers can affect the pH because some are acidic-forming and some basic. A soil test can help determine if the pH needs to be adjusted. Lime can be used to raise the pH, while sulphur will lower it.

Water—Plants will need additional water during dry periods. Typically, one inch of water every seven to 10 days is sufficient. A soil which is more sandy will need to be watered more often than a clay soil.

Mulch—Mulch helps in a flower bed by controlling weeds, slowing erosion and balancing moisture in the soil. Many types are available including pine straw, shredded hardwood, pine bark and cypress bark.

Pruning—The technique and timing of pruning will vary with the plant species. Generally, prune a shrub after flowers or desirable berries have dropped. Shearing a shrub will promote a flush of new growth. If you are continually having to prune a shrub because of its rapid growth, it may be best to find a more suitable plant.

Insects—A wide variety of insects can invade the landscape. The key is to identify the damaging insect and treat properly. If an insecticide is used, handle the product exactly as the label instructs. Common insects include bag worms on junipers, lace bugs on azaleas, scale on Euonymus, and aphids or spidermites on many different plant hosts.

Diseases—Many types of diseases can affect plants in the summer. These are primarily caused by a fungus and may be effectively treated if the proper fungicide is applied. Correct cultural practices, sanitation and ideal plant nutrition also can prevent many problems. Common shrub diseases include powdery mildew on crepe myrtle, black spot on roses, and leaf spot or rust on a variety of plants.

Aside from these tips, gardeners can also contact their Cooperative Extension Service office.

Do you know the Sancho family?

You know how it is — a woman wants everything to have a home, not necessarily in her home, but a home just the same.

While cleaning up a room at the Bay-Waveland School District offices, Linda Gavagnie uncovered a special piece of family memorabilia hidden under a taped on picture.

Hidden under this "throw away" print was a Papal Blessing issued by the Roman Catholic Pope Pius XII in 1966. The Blessing was issued to Mr. and Mrs. W.F. Sancho.

This wonderful calligraphy print has been protected from deterioration and fading by having the other print taped on top of the frame.

Mrs. Gavagnie was unable to locate any references to the Sancho family. "This is not something you want to throw away. I suspect that it may have belonged to a teacher in the 1960's and was forgotten in a classroom when school closed for the summer. We just don't know," she said.

DeLisle teachers participate in workshop

Four Coast area teachers participated in the first half of an intensive 10-day workshop at the University of Southern Mississippi June 7-11.

Debbie Buel, Cindy Cohen, Peggy McCullough and Sandra Russell, all teachers at DeLisle Elementary, were among 14 educators from across the Southeast who attended the workshop.

The training, stressing the Association Method of Learning, was conducted by the USM Dubard School for Language Disorders and made possible by a grant from the Mississippi Power Foundation.

Dubard School speech-language pathology staff members presenting the workshop were school director Dr. Maureen Martin, Daphne Cornett, Olivia Farish, Carolyn Felscher, Kay Roseberry and Professor Emerita Dr. Etoile DuBard.

With her resources exhausted Mrs. Gavagnie brought the Blessing to Mike Cuevas, Bay St. Louis director of Cultural Affairs. Cuevas agreed that the Blessing needed a home and began her own search to locate the owner or a family member.

A search of Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama telephone directories on the World Wide Web has uncovered no matches. Cuevas reviewed her library of local history and was unable to locate any mention of the family.

Exhausting her office resources Cuevas turned to Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society. Gray is searching the Society's resources.

"The next source of possible information is with Fr. Pete Mockler of Our Lady of the Gulf. His staff is searching the non-computerized parish records and making a request to the Biloxi diocesan offices for a search. This Blessing belongs with a family member.

"If anyone in your reading area can provide a clue to the whereabouts of the Sancho family, we would all appreciate knowing and reuniting this Blessing with the family for whom it was intended," said Cuevas. Anyone with information is requested to call Cuevas, 463-7120.

Reid-Martin

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Reid

Dawn Ixchel Martin of Bay St. Louis and Mark Ray Reid, also of Bay St. Louis were united in marriage May 8, 1999 in an afternoon ceremony in New Hope Baptist Church of Monticello, Miss. with the Rev. David Williams officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Corrine Carter of Montgomery, Ala.

The groom's parents are Mickey Reid of Waveland and Pat Reid of Monticello.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. For the occasion the bride selected a white satin and silk gown designed by David's Bridal featuring intricately beaded pearls and a mid-length train. Her veil headpiece was interspersed with pearls.

Maid of honor was Taunya Martin, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Lauren McDaniel, Tammy Thames and Brandy Yarborough.

Katelyn McDaniel was flower girl, and ring bearer was Landon Thames. The flower girl was escorted by Logan Thames.

Groomsmen included Tommy Terry, Jeremy King and Ray Fingler. Ushers were Keith Breland and Chris Kramer.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. The couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Firefighter completes course

Bay St. Louis Firefighter Re-zese Brunelle has recently returned from the 80-hour state certified "Fire Apparatus Driver/Operator" course at the Mississippi State Fire Academy graduating in the top 10 percent of his class.

The course curriculum is designed to meet the National Fire Protection Association 1002 Driver/Operator standard.

The Driver/Operator course carries the student from the basic emergency driving skills through fireground hydraulic calculations and also covers maintenance and testing of fire pumper and aerial ladder apparatus.

The Yarnspinner

As part of Pass Christian Library's Summer Reading Program, storyteller Angela Davis, The Yarnspinner and dancer and drummer Queen Esther, will appear Tuesday, June 29 at 10:30 a.m. The program, "Let the Good Books Roll," will thread song, humor and movement into the ancient art of storytelling in order to encourage children to read. Join Davis for good storytelling, a little dancing and lot of reading. The program is free and open to the public.

MSU provides special wedding present idea

A new, award-winning cookbook from Mississippi State University could solve the wedding gift idea dilemma for Mississippi shoppers this summer. While other family members and friends supply the traditional toasters, towels and china, "A Taste of Class" will stand out as a unique coffee-table quality cookbook. Published by the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Experiment Station, MSU's agricultural research arm, the book offers more than 150 recipes organized in menu formats.

"We wanted to share with others the good life of Mississippi State University," said Cary Sutphin, author of the 175-page book. Sutphin teaches food and beverage courses at MSU.

MAFES food products, including catfish and the famous cheese, are key ingredients in several recipes, like Pasta-Crusted Catfish and MSU Edam Cornbread. Sidebars concerning herbs, cooking methods and food presentation styles accompany many of the recipes.

Released Feb. 14, the cookbook has already received several awards.

The cookbook sells for $24.95 and is available at specialty and gift shops across Mississippi.

Bicycle helmet winners announced

Winners of the bicycle helmets from the bicycle safety program at the Bay St. Louis Depot are Ricky Calhoun, Dominic Vellon, Cayla Paterson and Jonathan Warren.

Ponder selected as U.S. National Award Winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced that Jace Ponder from Waveland has been named a United States National Award Winner in Mathematics.

The award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. The Academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Ponder, who attends Bay High School, was nominated for this national award by Patricia Harris, algebra teacher at the school.

Ponder will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, United States Achievement Academy winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, executive director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy.

The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Ponder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Ponder of Waveland. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ponder of Cedartown, Ga. and Mrs. P. E. McGinity of Bay St. Louis.

Mississippi.

The Bridge program invites incoming freshmen who have been awarded MAMP scholarships to spend a week on campus for orientation.

The students are also enrolled in special sections of General Studies 101 during their first semester to provide further university orientation, mentoring and individualized support activities.

Barnes, 18, is the daughter of Lloyd Burbridge and Carolyn Evans.

AD VALOREM ADVERTISEMENT

The Hancock County School District will hold a public hearing on its proposed school district budget for fiscal year 1999-2000 on June 28, 1999 at 5:30 p.m. at the office of the Superintendent. At this meeting a proposed Ad valorem tax effort increase shall be considered.

The Hancock County School District is now operating with projected total budget revenue of $20,183,942.62. 34.35% or $6,933,751 of such revenue is obtained through ad valorem taxes. For the next fiscal year, the proposed budget has total projected revenue of $23,189,734.26. Of that amount, 33.08% or $7,672,175, is proposed to be financed through a total ad valorem tax levy.

For the next fiscal year, the Hancock County School District plans to decrease Ad valorem tax millage rate by .11 mills from 52 mills to 51.89 mills.

This decrease in ad valorem tax revenue means that you will pay less in Hancock County School District ad valorem taxes on your home, automobile tag, utilities, business fixtures and equipment and rental real property.

Any citizen of the Hancock County School District is invited to attend this public hearing on the proposed ad valorem tax increase, and will be allowed to speak for a reasonable amount of time and offer tangible evidence before any vote is taken.

Advertorial

There is a new full service hardware store and rental equipment store located at 16320 Highway 603 in Kiln, Mississippi named Coastal Hardware.

Owner, Jimmy Strickland realized the need for a hardware and rental store in the area and acted on the opportunity to open Coastal Hardware. The store offers a wide selection of nuts and bolts, electrical supplies, plumbing supplies, hand and power tools, lawn and garden supplies, Valspar paints and much more. If you need a key made, Coastal Hardware can take care of that too. The store also has a complete section for all your marine needs.

Coastal Hardware offers rental equipment too. Everything from mini bobcats to spacewalks to utility trailers, Coastal Hardware can accommodate your rental needs. They also offer delivery service on all rental equipment and set-up on the spacewalks for your convenience.

Future plans for the store include carrying fishing supplies and selling gasoline as well as diesel at the pumps. The store will soon carry custom made hydraulic hoses too.

At Coastal Hardware, customer satisfaction is their number one priority. Their prices are reasonable and their advice is always free. The store is open seven days a week from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. For more information call Coastal Hardware at 586-1379.

Symbol of freedom and peace unveiled, dedicated in New Orleans on Fourth of July weekend

On the Fourth of July weekend, America's own remembrance of freedom and peace, all of the United States, and the world, will begin to learn more about one of the most compelling and original celebrations to honor the millennium.

It is the Millennium Monument World Peace Bell.

This is the world's largest swinging bell. It weighs 66,000 pounds and is 12 feet in diameter and 12 feet high. Its clapper weighs 7,000 pounds. The yoke in which it swings weighs an additional 30,000 pounds. It rings with a deep and resonant tone.

The bell will be unveiled in the United States on Friday, July 2, on the Mississippi River in New Orleans as part of that city's Riverwalk Fourth of July celebration.

On Sunday, July 4, the bell will be dedicated as a prelude to New Orleans' Fourth of July fireworks. Officials from around the world will gather for these ceremonies.

They will be led by Kentucky Governor Paul Patton and local officials from New Orleans and Louisiana.

Then, the bell will begin a trip by river barge, accompanied by a four-decker paddle wheel boat, the Belle of Cincinnati, up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers to ports along the way in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky. The river communities will hold their own welcoming peace ceremonies, ringing their own bells, holding hands for peace and incorporating the bell visit into their own local ceremonies. The bell will be welcomed "home" with a special river flotilla and ceremonies Saturday, July 31.

The bell will formally ring only on special occasions. This year, most importantly on Dec. 31, it will ring in the millennium. The Wall Street Journal has written that "Newport, Ky. may just be the place to be on Dec. 31, 1999."

While those who have seen it and heard it are captivated by its size and its tone, the real message it conveys is much more. It has been commissioned to spread a re-birth of commitment to freedom and peace and the achievements of this millennium.

The Millennium Monument Company enlisted The Verdin Company of Cincinnati, one of the world's most prominent bell makers, to determine where and how it could be cast.

After a worldwide search for appropriate partners, the Paccard Bell Company in France and a foundry in Nantes, France were selected to complete the record-breaking task.

When it was cast in Nantes, France on Dec. 11, the bell commemorated the 50th anniversary celebration of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The original declaration by the United Nations was signed in Paris Dec. 10, 1948.

An International cast of 200 important guests were on hand including, Gov. Patton, Nantes Mayor Jean-Marc Ayrault, officials and representatives from the United Nations, the French government, the United States government, the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Institute, and mayors and local officials from towns in France and the United States.

After the successful casting in the foundry (which, among other things, makes propellers for ships of the French navy), the bell cooled and was prepared for its unveiling on March 20. Visitors again gathered for this event at a commercial dock next to the Loire River.

The size of the bell, its tone and the inscriptions on its face overwhelmed the crowd.

These inscriptions include a dedication statement, "The World Peace Bell is a symbol of freedom and peace, honoring our past, celebrating our present and inspiring our future."

On the opposite side is a depiction of three young chil-

The children represent the future of the world and symbolize the awareness of freedom and peace, and the understanding and cooperation that is essential to the future.

Grand Casino Biloxi sets the stage for 'More Glitz'

All the glamour, the pizzazz and the razzle-dazzle that made Glitz one of Grand Casino Biloxi most popular shows is back -- and this time it's even bigger and better than before.

Strap yourself in for a roller coaster ride through the musical ages in More Glitz featuring the spontaneous wit of comedienne Pudgy, the show-stopping vocals of Mark Francis and Andrea Wagner, the seven-piece Chris Cortez Band and the electrifying Mistinguet Dancers.

Television and comedy club veteran Pudgy and the band start the show off swinging in nightclub style. Then it's down to the Cotto Club with the Mistinguet Dancers struttin' their stuff to cab Calloway's "Hi-De-Ho" and "Minnie the Mocher."

Ready for some laughs? Pudgy will send the showroom crowd into a hysterical frenzy with her quick-witted humor.

She also has a surprise up her sleeve, her excellent singing voice. Backed by a dashboard set, the band plays salute to James Brown with hits "I Feel Good," "Please, Please, Please," and "Papa's got a Brand New Bag."

From the 60's to the disco 70's, the cast of More Glitz grooves to Earth, Wind & Fire hits "Fantasy," "Boogie Wonderland," and more.

And, remembering the controversial war years of the 60's and 70's, the military-decorated cast performs a powerful medley to John Lennon's "Imagine," Edwin Starr's "War," and Janet Jackson's "Rhythm Nation."

From wartime to peacetime, the mood changes to love and romance as Francis and Wagner perform "At This Moment," "When a Man Loves a Woman," and more.

Pudgy, needing a little love too, comes back to woo the audience with another hilarious act. The Chris Cortez Band returns to show that Swing is king with their wild version of "Zoot Sit Riot."

And the show ends in grand fashion with "Rock This Town," proving that More Glitz brings the most music and fun to the Coast.

Showtimes are 3 p.m. Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday; 8 p.m. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday; and 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. No shows Thursdays.

Tickets are $9.95 for all shows. Call 1-800-WIN-2-WIN for tickets. Special group rates are available. Tickets are also available through TicketMaster outlets.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Children and resurrection

Joseph Ducros had no clue how his day would go. The 18 year old was on his first day of work on the site of the New Orleans riverfront when something went dreadfully wrong with the forklift operation, leading to the youth's untimely death.

Funeral services for nearly 92 year old Olga Johnson stood in marked contrast to Joseph's which followed hers by a day. Predictably, the youth in attendance flew out of control, screaming, sobbing and moving all about the church.

Only by leaning into my mike and drowing out the din with "Amazing Grace, how sweet the sound," were we able to even begin the Mass. That strategy succeeded after a veritable battle of dices and wills dragging out about two minutes.

Finally, not a wimper or moan could be heard from the congregation as screaming mourners surrendered one by one.

Things remained generally quiet until we were exiting the church with coffin. There a second-line funeral took over with a brass band and scores of teenagers who became increasingly aggressive in their dancing and self-expression.

Fortunately, they did not dance on and cave in the roofs of the hearse or lead limousine as they had done in a similar funeral a handful of years before. But something was brewing.

"Look!" the funeral director alerted me a bit later. "Look behind to your right at the line of parked cars!"

Some of the youth had leaped atop several cars and were proceeding to dance and dent. Some were even leaping from car to car in a fit of exuberance and destructiveness.

Horse-drawn, and elegant, the hearse crossed a main intersection, at which point the pall bearers removed the coffin preparatory to switching it to a conventional hearse.

"I couldn't take it anymore!" a female director observed, walking back away from the coffin. "The whole area around the coffin stinks of weed and beer! It's messing up my eyes and it's gotten into my hair and clothes!"

Glazed eyes and rank, sweaty bodies told the rest of the tale about the feckless teenagers who, supposedly, were cheering their departed comrade on to a better life in a better place to which all believers aspire.

But their reckless, violent behavior in the train of a funeral takes on a new spin in the light of recent violence in and without our schools around the country. Whether they believe in God is one question; resurrection is another.

Perhaps they are fighting the indictment of Paul who questions the validity of any faith confined to this life alone:

"If for this life only we have hoped in Christ, we are the most pitiable people of all" (1 Corinthians 15:19).

Worse, it may be that they do not place any hope in Christ at all, or in God by any name. It's been over two decades now that we adults have been discussing in dismay the fate-bound views of so many youngsters who believe they will soon die.

Couched in that fatalistic creed is the seeming absence of any life-after-death goal, concern or hope. When we say we have to reach back into family to forge real values in our children, we cannot afford to overlook eternal life.

Untimely, it is the optimism of eternal life in God that motivates and fires up all the engines of our life. All other values and the social graces follow this rock-solid lead.

Vacation Bible School set at Main Street

Special to the Echo
"Good News @ gospelrock" is the title of this year's Vacation Bible School at Main Street United Methodist Church, 162 Main Street, Bay St. Louis. Classes for Kindergarten through sixth grade will be 8:30 a.m.-noon July 5-9.

Director Pauline Conaway said participants will hear the good news that Jesus calls us, Jesus loves us, and wants us to feed his sheep. We can praise God, and God loves everyone. For more information, visit the VBS website at www.gospelrock.com.

As in years past, children can help other children through their voluntary donations during the week of Bible school.

Hope Haven has been selected again this year as the local mission project.

Children may give cleaning supplies or monetary donations to be used to purchase items needed at the shelter.

Everyone is invited to pre-register before July 3 by contacting the church office at 467-4538, 8 a.m.-noon (weekdays).

Children may be registered Monday, July 5, 8-8:30 a.m. in the church sanctuary.

Individuals requiring transportation to and from Bible school may contact the church office for details.

Celebrate freedom

On July 4, 1776 the Thirteen Colonies declared their independence. Therefore, every July 4th people in the United States of America celebrate the economic, political, and religious freedom that has grown out of that Declaration of Independence.

But are you as an individual really free? You have the freedom to work at the job you choose and enjoy the freedom to operate a business or run for public office. You also have the freedom to work at the job you choose and enjoy your favorite hobby. You enjoy the freedom to operate a business or run for public office. You also have the freedom to worship or not to worship. Yet even with all this freedom of self-expression, you may not be truly free. How can this be?

You can be without that inner joy of heart that makes freedom of expression such a wonderful thing. You see, Jesus said, "Everyone who commits (practices) sin is the slave of sin" (John 8:34). No slave is ever truly free.

Jesus Christ also came into the world to break the reigning power of sin in human lives. Only when you have been set free from slavery to unseemly habits and ill will that you can have real inner joy. It is only when you come to know the truth about Christ that you are truly set free. That's why the Bible says, "It was for freedom that Christ set us free" (Galatians 5:1).

Why not learn about Christ and really celebrate freedom?

Main Street presents Children's March

Each Wednesday evening Main Street United Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis will be working with the youth of the community by implementing music, games, and skits to help them parallel their modern-day lives to that of Jesus Christ in a program entitled Children's March.

"Children's March is not a half-time performance at the Superdome, but rather it's a theme that is growing in our nation today. The theme has to do with children knowing that God can use all of us, and each of God's children has specific plan in light of his ministry," said Dan Howard, Main Street's summer youth director.

All elementary, junior and senior high students are invited to participate in one of the three levels of activities best suited to meet their needs.

"Children's March is an educational means to a spiritual end. I believe that it is crucial for our daughters and sons to learn about Jesus, Christ's teachings in becoming well rounded students," Howard explained.

The Children's March will meet Wednesdays, 6:30-7:15 p.m. in Main Street's Multipurpose Building, 162 Main Street, Bay St. Louis.

For information, call 467-4538.

We Can Control Our Anger

The Bible tells us that we should be quick to listen, but slow to become angry, and that man's anger does not achieve God's righteous purpose. Each day, we are faced with people who cannot control their anger, and when they lose their temper, they embarrass themselves and cause ill feelings to others. Although anger is a normal emotion for self-preservation, control of this emotion is necessary for getting along in our society. Even though we all may get angry for one reason or another, when we put our lives and those around us in jeopardy, we are not acting as God would want us to. We should concentrate on what makes us upset, and realize that when our anger causes us to be out of control, we are not only hurting ourselves, but those around us. We should try to not let other people's actions affect our emotions in a hurtful way, and seeking God's help and praying about uncontrolled anger will help us to live a more peaceful life.

Don't give in to worry or anger; it only leads to trouble.

Food service supervisor receives certification

Rhea Scafidi-Rutherford, school food supervisor for the Hancock County School District, was recently recognized for successfully completing the National Restaurant Association's ServSafe Food Protection Manager Certification course entitled "Serving Safe Food."

This certification course, offered by the MSU Extension Service, provides up-to-date management-oriented information on food safety and addresses the issues of employee training, receiving, storing, preparing and serving food; safety regulations and standards; foodborne illness; pest control; cleaning and sanitizing; and accident prevention.

The Mississippi State Department of Health, through the Regulation Food Code, mandates food safety certification.
